News from the Network - A Day in the Life of Andi

North Glasgow Healthy Living Community, in partnership with NHS GG&C North West Sector CHP, is putting on a short presentation from students participating in Part 1 of the HIIC course: Health & Society.

In A Day in the Life of Andi, the students, from Phoenix Futures, Bath Street Recovery Hub, have chosen to highlight a variety of issues faced by recovering addicts influenced by course content including health inequalities, equity in health, social justice and barriers to participation.

The presentation will be held on Thursday 7th June 2012 in the premises of North Glasgow Healthy Living Community, 59 Charles Street, Royston, Glasgow, G21 2PR. Registration 10.45am for 11.00am start.

Students have identified key stakeholders from the following services as their target audience: Representatives from Mental Health Services, Addiction Services, Community Safety Services, Local GP's, Local MP's, and Housing Providers all within North Glasgow. To register your attendance, please email Glynis Boyle: glynis@healthynorthglasgow.co.uk by Monday 28th May.

'Health Issues in the Community', is a community-based training course, which aims to enable participants to develop their understanding of the range of factors that affect their health and the health of their communities and to explore how these factors can be addressed using community development approaches. North Glasgow Healthy Living Community is a lead partner in the delivery of HIIC.

SCDC launches LEAP online

CHEX's parent organisation, the Scottish Community Development Centre, is pleased to announce the launch of its new software package to support participatory, outcome focused planning and evaluation.

LEAP - Learning Evaluation and Planning is a values-based approach to planning and evaluating work with communities and it is now available as an online software application. The user friendly online version encourages users to ask critical questions about their project or programme, and it is designed to support joint working by allowing access to shared project plans and reports among various partners and stakeholders.

LEAP is now available at <http://www.planandevaluate.com/>

SCDC is offering an initial trial period which provides you and your team with free access to the tool for three months. For more information on how you can take up this offer please visit the SCDC website, or contact SCDC on 0141 248 1924.

General Information

New network for people living with long term conditions

Long Term Conditions Alliance Scotland (LTCAS) has recently launched an Involvement Network for people living with long term conditions who want to contribute to campaigning and policy activities.

The Involvement Network will allow LTCAS to capture the stories of people living with long term conditions. It is open to those aged 18 and over who would like to share their experience and expertise of living with long term conditions in order to assist LTCAS and its partner organisations with policy work, campaigns and research. Network membership is FREE and people will be supported to volunteer in a way that fits in with their time, condition, skills and interests. To find out more, please see the flyer or email Nancy Greig, Network Development Officer at nancy.greig@lucas.org.uk.

Good news for Community Growing

The Scottish Government has announced a £600,000 package of support to encourage the development of more community growing and support the growth of Scotland's grow your own sector. £450,000 of the funding has been allocated to the Central Scotland Green Network Development Fund and will be distributed to community growing projects over three years. The remaining £177,500 has been allocated to organisations to support the growth of the community growing, including the Federation of City Farms and Gardens, Trellis and Greenspace Scotland. See the Snippets website section below for news about an associated new website.

Latest attempts to promote physical activity

The Scottish Government is investing £100,000 towards piloting new integrated programmes that support patients into a more active lifestyle. The programmes provide brief advice from healthcare professionals followed by local activity programmes in community sport hubs or leisure centres. A partnership between the Royal College of General Practitioners (RCGP) and NHS Health Scotland, the programmes build on the evidence base for promoting physical activity through primary care. The test sites will be up and running early next year.

At the same time, the Scottish Government has announced that it will produce a National Walking Strategy to maximise the number of people using walking as a mode of transport, to get active and to stay active. Read more about both these stories on the Scottish Government website

Community Facilitators' Network 2012-13

Provided by the Kinharvie Institute, the Community Facilitators' Network aims to build and strengthen communities in Glasgow by developing and strengthening the facilitation skills of those working with communities throughout the city. Facilitation is concerned with the process and skills of enabling groups and communities to work more co-operatively and effectively together – skills essential for engaging and transforming communities.

For a contribution of no more than £500 (negotiable), the network offers:

- 5 full days quality facilitation skills training by certified facilitators
- 3 half day sessions to support you as you put your learning into practice
- a new network of contacts who work in and around Glasgow

The network starts in September 2012. Further information on the 2012/2013 Network is available here

New garden at Ninewells, Dundee

The therapeutic and community garden at Ninewells is currently being developed. The work requires tools, seeds, watering cans, garden gloves and more. So if you have any spares please donate them to Mary Colvin email mary.colvin@nhs.net

Why Involve the Third Sector in Health and Social Care Delivery?

This evidence paper was produced by the Scottish Government in collaboration with the Scottish Third Sector Research Forum and was published on the Third Sector Division website and the Joint Improvement Team Scotland website. Drawing on available evidence the paper demonstrates where and how the third sector is contributing to health and social care services delivery in Scotland. Tapping into the most robust evaluations, the paper provides examples of the Third Sector's contribution towards the healthcare Quality Outcomes ambitions for Scotland and highlights some key messages in how to improve engagement between government and the third sector. ### GoWell event report

The 6th Annual Event Report for the GoWell study is now available, consisting of a summary of the presentations made and the main discussion points from the day. A major theme of March's event, which CHEX attended, was the fact that physical regeneration in the GoWell transitional areas has not been matched by social regeneration. Professors Carol Tannahill and Ade Kearns, in their presentations, highlighted the need for more work around improving the social environment.

“Investment in physical improvements has not yet been matched by similar attention to some of these social factors. Furthermore, there is no evidence that improvements in the ‘social health’ of communities will happen as a by-product of investment in physical regeneration.” (from summary of presentation by Professor Carol Tannahill)

The following suggestions were made in the discussion session as to what should be provided to residents living in communities undergoing regeneration:

- Dedicated one-to-one contact and genuine engagement, coupled with a concerted effort to help local people influence decisions.
- A central meeting/coordinating point where residents can obtain information and influence issues that affect them.
- Better resourced third sector provision

In addition, the following was suggested as to how to make transition (moving to a new home) an opportunity for people to make changes in their lives:

- An increased contact/engagement role for housing officers
- Neighbourhood buddy schemes
- Investment in community/social structures as well as physical environment.
- A more strategic and integrated approach at agency level

GoWell priorities for the coming year include analysing new data and further exploring issues of relocation and mixed tenure. Download the report and related documents at http://www.gowellonline.com/index.php?option=com\_frontpage&Itemid=1

GoWell is a research and learning programme that aims to investigate the impact of investment in housing, regeneration and neighbourhood renewal on the health and wellbeing of individuals, families and communities over a ten-year period.

IRISS paper on assets

A new IRISS paper Strengths-based approaches for working with individuals (click to download) brings together much of the recent work around asset-based approaches and presents selected illustrative examples. It uses the umbrella term “strength-based approaches” to group together asset-based community approaches and more individual focused work in psychology and self-management. Although it doesn’t use the word, co-production is cited as one way that public services can build on people’s strengths. In addition, the GoWell project (see item above) is highlighted as a good example of research that builds on social assets. Despite the title, there is much that is relevant to community-led health, and the paper suggests implications for practice which could apply to those in the field.

People Powered Health Co-production Catalogue

As part of their People Powered health programme, Nesta have published a People Powered Health Co-production Catalogue. Produced by the New Economics Foundation (nef), the document brings together a range of case studies, resources and other information on co-production in health settings as well as in other sectors, in the UK and internationally. The purpose of the catalogue is to enable practitioners to reflect on their own practice and the extent to which that represents coproduction, and to enable them to learn about co-production practice. The case studies are predominantly in the areas of health and social care, and include three Scottish projects, Comas, Waverly Care and Routes out of Prison (RooP). The resource also lists further literature and co-production tools. Download it from Nesta for free by clicking here.

New work on prevention

It “wisdom of prevention” might seem obvious to those in the field of community-led health, but figures quoted at a recent event to mark the start of a new nef programme show that our public services are still predominantly focused on treating the effects. For instance, only 4 per cent of the total NHS spend is devoted to preventative measures despite the fact that so many health conditions are preventable.

In The Wisdom of Prevention (click to download), nef outlines the benefits of prevention for society, the environment and the financial sector. A clear and well-argued case is made for shifting to a prevention model, and ways of overcoming deeply entrenched barriers are suggested.

CFHS e-bulletin

The May e-bulletin from Community Food and Health Scotland is now available. It contains information on a new publication, written by SCDC for CFHS, called Not Only But Also, which examines how community food projects contribute to local outcomes. In addition, the newsletter provides links to funding, resources, events and consultations, including one on food labelling.

Funding

Creative Breaks Programme

The Creative Breaks Programme offers grants of approximately £5,000-£50,000 to Third Sector organisations for the provision of breaks for carers. The purpose of the programme is to improve the range, choice and availability of short breaks so that carers and the people they care for can have a better quality of life and feel better supported in their caring role. The closing date for applications is 12 noon on 30th May 2012. Funding will be available from October 2012 - September 2013. Visit the Shared Care Scotland website for more.

Help a Heart Grants

The British Heart Foundation's Help a Heart Grants programme can provide community and voluntary groups with funding of between £300 and £2,000 to promote heart health in their area. The Foundation is particularly interested in original and creative ideas, and projects must be patient led. Click here to read more. The next closing date for applications through its Help a Heart Grants programme is the 20th July 2012.

Communities and Families Fund

The Communities and Families Fund is funded jointly by the Scottish Government and the Big Lottery Fund Scotland. It will support local projects that will meet at least one of the following outcomes:

- Improve the quality of life of children (pre-birth to 8) through greater access to early learning, play and child and maternal health support
- Enable communities to shape and deliver support for families

There are no deadlines and applications, for grants of up to £10,000, can be submitted at any time. Examples of the types of projects that might be supported include:

- Parenting support and development projects
- Community play projects
- Projects that support better nutrition for young children
- Community-based family support and childcare projects
